Additional value-added courses or "add-on" courses are offered by the college. Add-on courses are available in two subjects, namely fashion designing and functional English, for the purpose of enhancing students' knowledge, developing their skills, and providing additional value to their academic accomplishment.

Anyone who successfully completes a one-year add-on course and passes the exam is awarded a certificate for that particular add-on course. When a student successfully completes two years of the same course and passes the exam, she is awarded a "Diploma" in that particular subject. Similar to that, an "Advanced Diploma" is given to the following the successful completion of exam and three years in the same add-on course.

These courses, which include B.A., BCA, BBA, and B.Com, can be chosen in addition to undergraduate programmes. At any point during their degree, students have the option to take a certificate course or any add-on course of their choosing. After completing a certificate course, students can sit for the diploma and advanced diploma exams.

The college timetable is adjusted to include classes for add-on courses. Along with their coursework, students receive excellent guidance for their future aspirations. During their employment, they become familiar with computer-aided design tools. In addition, students are given a practical education by being taken on industrial tours. Students often participate contribute in workshops, seminars, demonstrations held in other departments and colleges.

The library has journals and publications for both add-on courses.
